THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

Our own opinion is that the tax reduction bill, now pending in congress and which President Truman has promised to veto ts soon as it hits his desk, will pass over his veto. We do not believe congress would go to the trouble of re-passing the same bill again, with the effective date changed to January 1, 1948, if there had not been an accurate counting of noses first to see whether it could be passed over his veto.

Whether or not a reduction in taxes of 30 per cent in the lower brackets is inflationary, is something for fiscal experts to say, and there seems to be dimerrically opposed opinions about that among them. It can be said however, safely we think, that a 30 per cent reduction of taxes in the lower brackets will permit more spending for both living essentials and luxuries, may ease the tension that now exists between wages and the high cost of living, while the reduction of 10 per cent in taxes in the upper brackets will make more money available for investment and employment at the present high level of wages. The upshot of our thinking is that the tax bill, if enacted, will leave us about where we are so far as inflation is concerned.

Whether a tax reduction is wise from the long-time point of view, is we believe, debatable. The Marshall Plan for the economic reconstruction of 16 European states is bound to call for several billions of dollars in aid of it. Rehabilitation of Europe economically will require years in the doing. Now embarked on it we must see it through to a successful conclusion, otherwise we will merely send good money after bad. We have already made a start in this direction in Greece and Turkey. Our chips are down. Whether a century and a half of isolation, has prepared us adequately for this tremendous global game, with such huge stakes to win, or not, is even now too late for debate.

We should understand, each of us, who own a home, that this international struggle with the blighting social desease of communism, is for a much larger stake than dollars. Private enterprise is only another name, or aspect, of individual freedom. The liberty of the individual, under our Constitution has brought us to the peak of prosperity and power in the history of this planet. No nation of the past can compare except in minature, with the power we now can exert for the rejuvenescense of a war weary world. Ahead of us lies the most glorious dream ever drempt by alturists, brought to a practical realization. If we fail, the alternative will be slavery to a despotic state, such as the docile, kindly people of Russia new endure.

So, our tax reduction bill, and everything else we now do at home for ourselves, casts its great shadow over the world, raising the vital question of how it will effect our plans abroad. It should be very clear after two world wars to put down despotisms that sought to make vassals of millions of our fellow men, and ultimately to take us into camp also, that we are vitally concerned when any world power raises the ugly banner of human tyranny. It is better to choose now which we will accept rather than later when the evil banner is flaunted in our faces. To do that, as the Marshall Plan proposes, we must halt the march of communism across Europe, and later, as the Marshall Plan, does not propose as yet, its march across Asia.

The tax reduction bill, as we see it, is a preliminary stripping a strong man about to run a race. We are shaking loose a lot of impedimento that hampers the muscles of a young and powerful athlete. A tremendous number of parasitic bureaucrats are slowly being deprived of their prefarred places at the treasury spigots. With taxes reduced there will be more money for paying the national debt, and less for swival chair leeches. The yips and yowls of those dispossessed of federal sinecures will shortly be converted into the busy pattering of feet in service of their country's economy It may be that later on we shall restore the taxes, we now seek to reduce, but in any event the preent bill if passed is salutary and necessary.

RESIDENTS OF AUBURN SEE FLYING DISCS

AUBURN: Warren Johnson, Auburn electronics, expert, thinks the much publicized flying discs, seen in many parts of the United States and recently in the Auburn area, operate on the principles of the Australian boomerang, but are electrically controlled.

Johnson arrived at this conclusion after talking with John Grundig, a former resident of Australia, who now lives in Auburn, and who saw an object resembling the disc from a point near the junction of High and Sacramento Streets.

"I think they travel on a beam, and when they reach the designated point, an electrical device is changed so they return to the point from which they originate," said Johnson.

It is Johnson's theory that some agency is conducting scientific experiments with harmless discs.

Kjell Qvale, former navy pilot, now in the automobile business in Auburn, told newsmen in Alameda early this week he and about 50 other persons had seen a group of "flying saucers" about 2:30 p. m. Saturday near Auburn.

He said they were visible three or more minutes.

"I have seen a lot of airplanes, and those were not planes," he said.

"I thought like most people that the reports on the discs were crazy" he continued, "but now I have seen them myself."

Several Auburn residents including Albert Saladana and John Flint report seeing peculiar objects which might be flying discs over the past week end.

Never to be left out of things, the Truckee-Tahoe area this past week came in for its reports of the airborne platters.

The first was reported in July 3 by Rex Levisee, forest service lookout at Martis Creek, at between 20,000 and 22,000 feet in the vicinity of Red Mountain in the Summit Range, This "disc" was a bit lazy compared to others reported over the nation and appeared to be moving very slowly. Levisee reported one side was quite bright while the other was dull and did not reflect the sunlight.

From our Tahoe correspondents we received a report that Jay Hall of Oakland employed at Meadow Peak, Meeks Bay, spotted one there Monday evening while driving alone on the lakeshore near Homewood.

He said it was almost overhead when he first saw it and he watched it travel into the mountains on the west shore of the lake. He described the object as round in shape "resembling a huge dishpan" with what appeared to be a copper bottom which glistened as it turned in the air."

Hall disclaimed any prior knowledge of the flying discs.

Nettle of San Mateo, and son moved him to San Mateo in the hope that a change of climate would benefit his health. He did show improvement for a time but later gradually grew worse.

Blamey organized the Nevada County Band and it grew to be a generous, active organiztion of musicians who gave freely of their talent to county festivals. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge of Cheyenne, Wyoming and of the Mine Workers Protective League of Grass Valley. TY COBB JAILED IN PLACERVILLE

PLACERVILLE: The acrid tongue of Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the old "Georgia Peach" of baseball, which got him into many a diamond and club huose battle caused him to spend a little while in a county jail cell here Saturday.

Cobb and Lucille LaPointe were arrested by Highway Patrolman Reno Franihi on Highway 50 near here and taken to the court of justice of he Peace T. F. Lewis.

While a complaint charging drunkenness on the public highway was being made out against Cobb and one charging reckless driving against the woman, the former baseball great according to Judge Lewis, "spoke too freely."

Judge Lewis said Cobb became so bothersome and talkative that he ordered the sheriff to put the baseball immortal in a cell. Cobb was held there until the complaints were completed.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder when across the sky,
The flying saucers whiffle by,
How we all stand here staring up
Hoping to see a spoon or cup;
Oh well, in this strange world of care,
Most every thing's up in the air,
And now, above earth's man made troubles
Perhaps the gods are blowing bubbles.

I wonder about the flying saucers, but I'm advancing no opinions about them, their origin or their destination. Opinions become obsolete so rapidly in this changing world, that it would be foolish to waste any on such transient objects as flying saucers.

I don't know what these strange heavenly visitants are, but like the little girl who saw ghosts, "I know what they ain't." They "ain't" supernatural, of that we may all be sure. A perfectly natural explanation will soon be forthcoming, if it hasn't already been voiced and then our wondering minds will be at rest.

I wonder why it has not occurred to some of our worthy representatives that the various conclaves of national and international importance might be served if small groups of gold star mothers were present at each session. Under the eyes of those who have given so much for the winning of the war, I'm sure the world leading diplomats and statesmen, would do less arm waving and shouting, less dilly-dallying and walking out; in fact far less juggling with the hopes of a distraught world. Perhaps the nations would stop acting like bad children and conduct themsedves in an orderly manner.

Another thought. why not send some of our young soldiers to these world shaping conclaves—boys who fought so valiantly to win the war. I'm sure they would speed the making of peace. Young Americans, Englishmen and Russians yearned to fight together now, when peace is the goal for which we are all striving.

I wonder if all the modern prophesies have been fulfilled. Mother Shipton, N. Damus, A. Tennyson, R. Ingersoll, Mr. Verne et al, made quite a number of lucky prognostications and many pretend to be amazed at their accuracy, forgetting that the art of prophesy is an easy one to pursue; one has but to note the trend of the times and of human events in general, evaluate them carefully and then—utter speech.

No doubt but that we shall have a new crop of prophets cropping up ere long and when they speak, "let no dog bark". Future generations will stand agape before events they so ably predicted. Yes, prophesying is an easy game; if the forecasts are fulfilled, one is rated immortal; if they fail, no one remembers, no one criticises and no one berates.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

CHAPTER ONE

May 19, 1850—The pork I bought in town last night is the stinkenest salt junk ever brought around the Horn. It is a hardship that we can't get better hg meat as it's more than half of our living. We fry it for breakfast and supper, boil it with our beans and sop our bread in the grease. Lord knows we pay enoghu for it. When I first settled on the creek (Rock Creek, Nevada County) it was a dollar a pound and the storekeeper talks about it being cheap now at sixty cents. I believe that if it were not for the potatoes that are fairly plenty and the fact that the woods are full of game, we would all die of scurvy.

There is a hunter who lives over on Round Mountain who makes a living killing deer and peddling the meat among the miners. He charges fifty cents a pound for venison steaks and he told me he makes more money than the average miner. I paid seventy-five cents apiece in town yesterday for two apples and did not begrudge the money. I was told that they were grown in Oregon, which seemed strange as I did not know that country had been had been settled long enough to raise fruit.

Will sell no more dust to M——. He allowed only seventeen dollars an ounce and then blew out two dollars' worth of fine gold. Said it was not clean. Jerry Dix who is only two claims above me on the creek gets $18.50 for his at the store but it always weighs short. They are all in a ring to rob us poor miners. Sent an eleven dollar specimen home to Dad.

Sack of flour	$14.00	5 lbs. dried apples	$1.50
10 lbs. pork	$6.00	Pair boots	$16.00
1 lb. tea	$2.50	Can molasses	$3.00
10 lbs. beans	$3.00	Duck overalls	$2.50
2 cans yeast	$1.00	Shirt	$2.00
5 lbs. sugar	$2.50	Shovel	$2.50
Codfish	$2.00	Pick	$2.50
20 lbs. potatoes	$6.00	Total	$67.00

I was charged four dollars for delivering the lot at the creek Sunday morning. Forgot to get some powder and shot. Paid four bits apiece for two New York Heralds.

There is another man who is making money. All our letters come by mail to Sacramento and are then sent by express to Hamlet Davis, the storekeeper on Deer Creek who acts as postmaster although he has no legal appointment. He is the big gold dust buyer of the camp and can afford to do the work for nothing as it brings most of the miners to his store. Johnny Latham, the express rider, contracts to carry letters and papers for two bits each and rides the trails and creeks for miles around delivering them besides selling newspapers to such as want the latest news from the States. We are aways pleased when his mule heaves in sight and would gladly give him the weight of the letters in gold if we had to. How heartsick we get for news from the old home way off here out of the world and there is no disappointment quite as bad as when he passes us by without handing over the expected letter. My folks are mighty good. They never miss a steamer.

Everybody on the creek gone to town and its pretty lonesome. I wonder what mother would say if she saw my bunk. Have not put in fresh pine needles for three weeks. I know she would like my bread. The boys all say I am the best bread baker on the creek. Wrote her a long letter and sent dad the "Miner's Ten Commandments."'

Wouldn't I like to be with them just for a day!

PEAR CROP AHEAD OF TIME, SAY COLFAX FRUIT GROWERS

COLFAX: The pear crop in eastern Placer county is about two weeks in advance of last year, a survey showed this week.

While spokesmen for both the Colfax Fruit Growers Association and the Pacific Fruit Growers Exchange indicated that picking in general would be underway in full force by July 21, some growers are beginning harvesting operations on Monday next.

Crop estimates run from normal to 25 per cent above normal. Field surveys show that the acceleration of harvesting dates has had no detrimental effect as to the size and quality of the fruit.

Meanwhile both the Colfax Fruit Growers Association and Pacific Fruit Exchange are this week busy preparing thier Colfax plants for handling of the crop.

Garrin Mitchell, general manager of the Colfax Growers Association, announced that the huge new cold storage plant which his company has been in the process of building for the past year and a half, now is complete and ready for use. With a capacity for handling 100,000 standard pear boxes, the block long plant will be for both pre-cooling fruit slated for immediate shipment and for storage. Mitchell said that the first fruit received at the association plant would be placed in cold storage for a few days until packing activities began on or about July 21.

The cold storage plant also will be used for handling apples, Mitchell said. This was indicated as a new venture locally.

An estimated cost of the cold storage plant would be difficult to announce, Mitchell said, as the cost has been combined with other improvements made throughout the entire Association plant and over a period of several years. These other improvements include facilities for packing apples—grading tables and packing belts, to mention only one or two.

Mitchell did, however, mention some of the benefits that would be derived from these additions and improvements. He declared:

They will enable us to put out a much larger pack than in years previous which in turn, will provide us with a longer work season.

Packing would last through October, Mitchell said. Cold storage would continue as long as there were apples.

Ramous Jewell, manager of the Pacific Fruit Exchange, said that his company would be going strong by July 21, but that limited operations would get underway Monday next, Jewell said:

A number of growers have told us they are beginning harvesting operations next week. We are getting our plant ready now.

Jewell said that packing operations at the Pacific Fruit Exchange began last year July 28. He said that growers have told him that the crop generally is above normal.

Important developments were forecast for the Nevada City mining district with the projected reopening of the famous Murchie Mine east of town. Night and day shifts were being used to expedite the work of tearing down all the old buildings and replacing them with new ones of corrugated iron and concreting the shaft collar and reservoir. The stock of the American Foundation Company was financing the work at the old mine which was composed of four well defined veins known as the Big Blue, Independence, Lone Star and Alice Bell.

Foley's candy and ice cream parlor on Broad Street was boasting a new Frigidaire soda foundtain with marble front. One of the oldest businesses in town, it was originally located on Commercial Street and moved to its center of town location in 1911. It was to be removed to San Francisco and put on display at their offices in that city.

Atomic Photos Exhibited At University Of California

BERKELEY: Photographs of the most complete disintegrations of atomic nuclei ever achieved by man has been exhibited publicly here for the first time.

The photographs show disintegrations resulting from the passage of the 100-million electron volt neutron beam of the giant 4000 ton cyclotron at the University of California through a big cloud chamber.

The work is a part of the pure research program sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission in collaboration with the University's Radiation Laboratory. The photographs were taken by Dr. Wilson Powell, associate professor of physics.

Five pronged stars emerging from a central point are shown in the photographs. Each prong represents a piece of an atomic nuclei, disintegrated on being struck by a fast neutron moving through the chamber.

These stars are similar to those fond in low energy cosmic radiation and are the first produced by cyclotron bombardment. The 100-million electron volt neutrons are, in effect low energy cosmic rays.
